

City University of Hong Kong invites applications for tenure-track faculty positions at the rank of Assistant Professor in the area of statistics within College of Business.

City University of Hong Kong is a dynamic, fast-growing university that is pursuing excellence in research and professional education. As a publicly-funded institution, the University is committed to nurturing and developing students' talents and creating applicable knowledge to support social and economic advancement. Being an international university in a global city of Hong Kong, City University has been ranked amongst the top 25 schools in QS Asia University Rankings (2019). The Department of Management Sciences within the College of Business has attained international recognition, with a strong group of researchers specializing in operations management and business analytics.

The Department seeks strong candidates in analytics and business statistics. Specialization is open, but preference will be given to those contributing to cutting-edge development of statistics and/or machine learning with application to business analytics, econometrics and finance. Candidates for Assistant Professor should possess a PhD, completed or near completion, and good potential for publishing in high quality journals. Preference will be given to those candidates with research and teaching interests in applied statistics, business analytics, machine learning or a closely-related field. Successful candidates are expected to develop a vigorous research program and teach courses in business statistics, operations analytics and related courses, initially at the undergraduate level and the postgraduate level (including MBA).

Salary and Conditions of Service

The competitive package is comparable to the top 30 business schools in the United States. Excellent fringe benefits include gratuity, leave, medical and dental schemes, and relocation assistance (where applicable). Initial appointment will be made on a fixed-term contract.
